

CHATHAM-KENT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE strongly objects to potential labour and employment standards reforms – calls for further review

Changes would discourage investment, eliminate jobs and diminish economic opportunities in Ontario, especially among small business owners

Chatham-Kent, May 16, 2017: The Chatham-Kent Chamber of Commerce, in partnership with the Ontario Chamber of Commerce (OCC), has sent a letter to Premier Kathleen Wynne warning against potential changes to Ontario's Labour Relations Act (LRA) and the Employment Standards Act (ESA), including the introduction of a $15 minimum wage. The letter is cautioning that these reforms may have unintended consequences impacting job creation and competitiveness, as well discouraging investment in the province.

The potential reforms are coming at a time when costs for consumers and the cost of doing business is high and putting Ontario at a competitive disadvantage. Drastic reforms to labour and employment run the risk of causing serious damage to the future prosperity of the province.

"These sweeping changes could seriously impact job creation and the health of our local economy. Chatham-Kent is noting employment growth, greatly on initiatives of small business." stated Christopher June, Chair, Chatham-Kent Chamber of Commerce. "We need to get the message out that the proposed changes would not only discourage investment in our Municipality but, clearly, discourage investment and diminish economic opportunities throughout Ontario. June added, "At a time when businesses are making strides forward, quick implementation of these changes could halt activities for these companies. We need to ensure that proper analysis is completed on the economic future of Ontario before these reforms are adopted. We are calling on our local MPP's to voice the concerns of the Chatham-Kent business community. Government needs to consider the economic balance between employer and employee, as well as end costs to consumers, when undertaking such initiatives."

On issues of non-standard and part-time work, Statistics Canada data shows that part-time work has risen 22 percent since 2003, down from the 36 percent increase in the previous 12-year period. Recent studies show that 76 percent of part-timer workers voluntarily choose part-time work to satisfy and better accommodate their personal life.

"We are urging Premier Wynne to complete an economic impact analysis of the proposed reforms to limit potential consequences that could seriously jeopardize our future growth," said Richard Koroscil, Interim-President and CEO, Ontario Chamber of Commerce. "We support reform where and when it is needed, but we caution against change for change's sake."

The OCC's letter reminds the Premier that Ontario's employer community is doing its part to create better jobs and working conditions in the province. Budget 2017 points out that 98% of all new jobs created since the recession have been full time, and 78% have been above-average wage for their respective industries.

The letter notes that the goals of economic growth and improved employee rights are not mutually exclusive. The OCC believes that what supports the competitiveness of Ontario's economy can also help enhance quality of work. Increased education and enforcement may assist with compliance to Government regulations and can improve worker environments. Regulatory reform that raises costs for business, only to reduce the ability of business to invest in and grow the labour force is counterproductive.
